Malawi’s wildlife faces threats from all sides, which is why we work hard to deliver world-class rescue and rehabilitation for wild animals. We're delighted that our Wildlife Centre was recently re-accredited by the Global Federation of Animal Sanctuaries for upholding exemplary standards across all of its operations.

Our CEO, Jonny Vaughan, commented: "Maintaining excellent standards of care for wild animals is our first priority. We're thrilled to have secured re-accreditation from GFAS, especially in the midst of what has been an incredibly challenging period."

We're also pleased to report more good news - now that the main airport in Malawi has re-opened, you can sign up to work alongside our award-winning team! Spaces are available on our 2021 vet externships and wildlife vet medicine courses, alongside a range of other placements.

Your support is crucial to all of our work. Together we will create a future in which Malawi's wildlife and wild places can thrive.
future in which Malawi's wildlife and wild places can thrive.

Support us

LWC earns prestigious accreditation

This month the Lilongwe Wildlife Centre was re-accredited by the Global Federation of Animal Sanctuaries, an award that recognises global standards of excellence in animal care, safety, governance and sustainability. We're proud of all the volunteers, staff and supporters who make this work possible - thank you!

Read more →
Calling vets and vet students!

As Malawi re-opens for international flights, now is the time to start planning your 2021 travel. Book a vet externship or a wildlife vet medicine course with our team of experts. We also offer a range of other placements in sanctuary work, wildlife research and more (not all placements require veterinary experience).

Book now →
Wild animals belong in the wild

When we recently rescued a young baboon that had been kept on a chain we were shocked at her condition. Pretzel was suffering from severe deformities as a result of poor diet during captivity. Now she is safe in the care of our team at the Lilongwe Wildlife Centre, Pretzel is taking every opportunity to grasp her second chance at life.
Reformed inmates champion nature

Children aren't the only ones to benefit from our environmental education programme. Last year we delivered our teaching to inmates at a prison in the Northern Region of Malawi. Proving that knowledge is power, several individuals have gone on to develop their own conservation projects after being released from prison.

Find out more →

DONATE
Show your support for wildlife conservation in Malawi.

VOLUNTEER
Join us for the experience of a lifetime in the Warm Heart of Africa.
ADOPT
Make a real difference by adopting a rescued animal.

IN THE NEWS
Living Planet Report
The new Living Planet Report by WWF shows that wildlife populations have plummeted by 68% since 1970 - and there are no signs that this downward trend is slowing. Read more.

'Be like Malawi'
That's the recommendation from the Basel Institute on Governance on how to tackle illegal wildlife trade. Read more.

You are receiving this email because you opted in on our website, have donated to us, are a member, or have expressed an interest in our work.

Lilongwe Wildlife Trust
Email: comms@lilongwewildlife.org
Postal Address: PO Box 1646, Lilongwe, Malawi

Unsubscribe